With the second CD the four musicians of the new jazz group "unart 4.0" who originate from very different corners of jazz consequently pick up the red thread where they left it in their debut CD, highly acclaimed by the international press. Again the compositions are elegantly led together in three suites. While in "3 Suites" the pieces of the various composers were still mixed, they are now in "New Suites" homogenously combined by each one of the three artists. The aesthetic presentation of each of them thus becomes more clearly, more austere and audible. At the same time it is impressive how the authentically developed performance and the unmistakable culture of sound of "unart 4.0" achieve to bring the various authors together again. A successful piece of music combining contemporary composition and improvisation with dreamlike accuracy leading the listeners over and over again into new and surprising worlds of sound.

The saxophonist Ewald Hügle is classically trained (under Ivan Roth), but his first love has always been jazz. His mastery of the saxophone, from soprano to baritone, gives the band its characteristic sound.

The Swiss (Schaffhausen) guitarist Urs Röllin provides the harmonic framework, assuming a wide range of roles, whether it be as bassist, electronic wizard, soloist or simply discrete accompanist.

Dieter Ulrich, the outstanding drummer, put his mark alongside Urs Blöchliger on the Swiss Jazz scene of the 1980s and 1990s. His ability to keep pace with unexpected changes makes him not only the perfect timekeeper but also the band's helmsman.

Robert Morgenthaler's trombone playing is sensuous, bluesy and jazzy, making sure "unart 4.0" keeps its feet firmly on the ground. His vast experience as a composer and instrumentalist is second to none.
